To Whom It May Concern:

The C. Barnes Project played at our daughter and new son-in-law's wedding reception on June 18, 2011. They were great. We recommend them highly.

The band plays a great selection of Mo-Town songs, plus others, and the selection they played for us was popular with both the young crowd and the parents' generation. This was the primary reason we chose this band, and it worked out just as we hoped.

C. Barnes project has a great horn section and three fantastic vocalists – a woman and two men. They can really cover any type of song with their range of voices. The rendition of That's How Strong My Love Is was a show stopper. Plus, the band has a seasoned, tight sound and they know how to get the crowd moving. We had a full dance floor most of the night.

The band was easy to work with before the event, and when they arrived, they were polite, professional and courteous. More than that, they were genuine and friendly, warm, good people who were a pleasure to know.

To sum it up, C. Barnes Project showed us a very good time and we would recommend them without hesitation.
